Dreams of Venice

By PUKACO

TIMELESS STYLE BREATHTAKING COLOR .

Why Do Buildings Look Old & Neglected in Venice, Italy?

"Old". Something that they possess as part of their nature is a sense of 'oldness.' Italians have a strong sense of the 'oldness' of their cities, their culture, their family lines, etc. Because they are, for the most part, well over 2,000 years old. This is a HUGE feature in their sense of pride, their own self-image. Time.

For Venetians, the beauty and the value is in the visual history of their buildings, not in Glossy appearance.

Venice is truly one of the most iconic and unique cities on earth. That's why PUKACO was inspired by it, and created bursting with vibrant color. Dreams of Venice collection – the perfect luxury color palette for your home.

ROSSO – ‘Italian’

ROSSO – aptly dubbed as ‘millennial pink’, featured in many top architecture projects, setting the tone for its future in design.

Taking inspiration from the colourful homes clutching the old historical buildings of Gondola in a Venetian canal, PUKACO wanted to bring some of that excitement into your morden home. Oozing retro characteristics, this nostalgic colour palette brings a contemporary flair to spaces.

TERRACOTTA

Over the past couple of years, terracotta has made a resurgence as a design trend and we are fully here for it. Terracotta is inspired by the natural colour of wood and earth. Precisely because it draws on the naturalness of these elements, it is able to convey comfort and relaxation.

The word terracotta originates from the union of two terms 'terra' and 'cotta'. This colour originates from the typical hue of terracotta pots, and is enriched with shades of pink, orange up to brick red. Its different shades offer the possibility of varying the combinations in different rooms of the house to give the interior a unique and timeless charm.

SAND MOOD

Barefoot, feeling the warm sand of the beach. This earthy color makes one think back to the perfect beach, reminding us of everlasting sunny days near the water. A color that celebrates life, evokes memories, and makes the most of the moment.

DUPLEX IN BEIGE

With gray no longer in vogue, you might be curious about which color is taking its place. Among all the neutrals, gray held a special status with designers and decorators for its seriousness, but it is now being gradually replaced by beige.

Beige has proven to be elegant and timeless in its simplicity. Beige from Dreams Of Venice by PUKACO, as an earthy pigment, is particularly adept at imbuing a space with the soothing, nurturing qualities of nature.

MUSTARD

"Earth tones are a go-to when we looking to create a calm, comforting, and warm atmosphere," says PUKACO Group lead designer. "They all contain some brown pigment, which explains their muted appearance and cocooning effect on a space."

There are plenty of subtle, neutral earth tones you can bring into your space. Take the timeless combo of Mustard and varying shades of brown, tan ...makes for a refined, chic take on the rustic look. It's a perfectly understated palette that adds undeniable warmth.

HONEYCOMB SPONGE

Honeycomb sponge is made from high-quality synthetic sponge, has a round shape, small enough to hold in hand, easy to hold, and easy to apply.

Exquisitely designed with uneven holes, creating a natural texture effect, not too disparate to cause loss of aesthetics.

Honeycomb sponge's high elasticity when wet makes it a good choice for creating many concrete paint effects.

Honeycomb sponge can hold a lot of paint inside. Moreover, it helps to distribute the paint in a controlled way to the surface of the material to save paint. It is easy to understand the sales of Honeycomb sponges through the advantage above. In the future, PUKACO will launch more quality products like that.
